President Choate, from the floor, said (By Associated Press.) "I hope the fiasco of last Saturday is not to be repeated this week. It seems to me that we should attend to our to me that we should attend to our work."

Notwithstanding Mr. Choate's appeal, a large number of excuses were made for the Saturday afternoon session.

As soon as the Judiciary article was taken up, Mr. Veeder moved to reconsider the vote by which the Convention last night refused to extend the age limit beyond seventy years. Mr. Root protested, and the motien was defeated.

Mr. Dickey offered an amendment providing that the Governor may utilize the retired Judges of the Supreme Court in the holding of Extraordinary Courts at any time or to relieve the present Courts. Adopted.

Mr. H. A. Clarke offered an amendment that would forbid the increasing of salaries of judges as well as forbid diminishing them. Mr. Roche said that he was in favor of Mr. Clarke's amendment for the reason that the salaries were large enough now, and there should be no leeway given the Legislature to make a change.

Mr. Merepess said that the totals of salaries to be paid under the new regime was $85,800 per year. He thought that enough.

Mr. Root said the Committee had sim-Moorfield Storey, of Boston, read an ad-

Toward municipal legislatures the speaker found the same distrust existing. Biennial sessions of State Legislatures, he regarded as an evidence of public distrust, also evinced in the constitutional inhibition of special legislation. The same distrust is reflected in the Legislature itself, and nowhere so strongly as in the Federal House of Representatives, which by its rules has so fettered its own action as to have almost revolutionized its character. Continuing he said: in New York was an absolute necessity, but the Court of Sessions in Brooklyn was merely a figurehead, and its work could be done very well by other courts or by the presiding judge without any side justices.

Mr. Powell, of Kings, was opposed to the amendment. It was designed to keep in office a certain Judge, who would lose his job unless the amendment prevailed.

The amendment was defeated by a Loss of faith in the Legislature is loss of faith in the Legislature is loss of faith in the people themselver, and this facing really lies at the root of the changes in public opinion on fundamental principles are advantaged. Mr. Roche offered an amendment restricting the Legislature in making local courts, to certain candidates. It was defeated.

Mr. C. A. Fuller offered an amendment striking out that portion of the Committee's report forbidding county judges in countles of over 100,000 from practising law. He wanted all county judges so prohibited. Defeated.

Mr. Blake, of New York City, said that in the report of the procedings of the convention nublished in Wednesday's papers he was represented as ufriendly to the principle of State ald to charitable institutions. Mr. Blake's position is just the contrary. He is a strong advocate of sustaining te system as it has heretofore existed and strongly supports the report of the Charittes Committee.

The Democratic milnority of the Cities Committee are not satisfied with the report of the majority, and will draft and present a report of their own, based in a measure on the proposed amendment of Mr. Mulqueen, of New York.

It will oppose the retaining by the Governor of the power to remove heads of police departments. It will oppose the placing of power in the local Legislature to overcome by a three-fifths vote the veto of the Mayor, and will urge that it be increased to two-thirds.
